

Elderly Pet Release

Your pet's health is of the greatest importance to us and making sure your pet is well taken care of in an emergency or carrying out your final wishes in the event of your pets passing is something we would like you to prepare for. Although it is never something that you want to think about, it is always a good idea to plan ahead for the unknown. When it comes to your pet becoming ill or passing away while left in the care of a boarding facility, a clearly defined plan of action should be in place with the facility staff in order to carry out your wishes when you are unable to be contacted or cannot personally be present to make important decisions.

We will always try to use your regular veterinary hospital if they are reasonably close; otherwise for necessary medical care and after-hours services we will use one of our trusted veterinary providers nearby.

{ It is a good idea to have a similar release filed with your veterinarian to allow them }
 { to understand your wishes and possible limitations in the care of your pet. }
